One Extra Degree

To get what we've never had in life, we must do what we've never done before. An extra one degree of effort could make a world of difference for you.

Working towards your goals may be similar to watching water boiling on the stove. We either didn't allow the water to completely boil - we take it off the stove too soon, or we walk away and don't pay attention and there's a mess and we have to start all over. Extra effort, care, and attention matter, and small things can have a big impact on results. Your efforts can be like boiling water. Do you quit before it's time or do you follow through? What is your boiling degree?

Movie Link (3:34)

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uRDNLTMaZqo

Motivational Discussion Questions (select one)

- Look at your life right now. No matter how pleased you are, you can always drive it up a notch and add a few more degrees of happiness and success to take you from hot to steaming!! What ways can you add that extra degree, and "kick it up a notch"?

- What will it take for you to hit 212 degrees?

©2015 Sharpenz, LLC. All rights reserved.