

If You've Never Failed, You've Never Lived

Failure isn't necessarily a setback. Do you embrace or succumb to failure?

Failure isn't necessarily a setback. It's often the first step to success. Would you rather fail once and then succeed or have a string of success without any failure? On this video seven famous people are showcased with mention of what failing message or personal failures they had before becoming successful. Which lends the conversation to do you embrace or succumb to failure.

Movie Link (1:16)

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_tjYoKCBYag

Motivational Discussion Questions (select one)

- Do you embrace or succumb to failure? Give several examples.
- What failure did you experience and what was the success outcome because of that failure? What if anything would you do differently?